Re: KFPH-CD ATSC 3.0 Site Visit and Main Studio Initiative
(MB Dockets Nos. 16-142 and 17-106)

Dear Commissioner O’Rielly:

On behalf of Univision Communications Inc. (“Univision”), I want to thank you for taking time out of your busy schedule last month to visit the Phoenix ATSC 3.0 test market. Univision is proud that its KFPH-CD is one of the first stations in the United States operating under the Next-Generation transmission standard approved by the Commission. We are very pleased that so many partners have been able to work together to comprehensively test ATSC 3.0 in real-world conditions, under the leadership of the Pearl Group, including ten television stations -- owned both by networks and their affiliates -- and major equipment manufacturers. We hope that the fruits of this extensive and collaborative effort will help transform the new standard from 1,200-pages of technical specs into real world, consumer-focused Next-Generation service. Given our large and growing over-the-air audience in Phoenix, it is particularly important to us that the broadcast transmission standard continues to evolve with new technology.

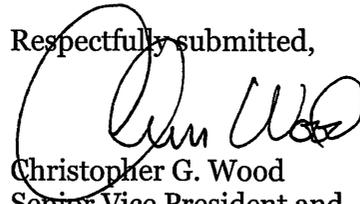

Additionally, Univision would like to take this opportunity to commend your dedication and leadership in a number of Media Modernization actions. Of particular importance to Univision is the flexibility set forth in the 2017 Main Studio Order.¹ At one point in time, the previous main studio rule required Univision to maintain five separate main studio facilities for its radio, full power TV and Class A TV stations in the Phoenix/Flagstaff area. The ability to consolidate all of these facilities will allow Univision to utilize its resources to better serve the local community.

¹ Elimination of Main Studio Rule, Report and Order, 32 FCC Rcd 8158 (2017).
